 - use PC to search bibliographic databases or to check your email.

The main tools for the bibliographic search are:

- Catalogs: A list of the documents possessed by one or more connected libraries, containing information about the physical location of the documents and much more;
- Data Bases:
 1. Bibliographic databases: organized digital collections of references to academic literature, especially journal and newspaper articles (e.g. Scopus and Web of Science);
 2. Full-text databases: collections where you can find the whole text of the document you are looking for (e.g. SocIndex or EconLit).

OPAC (Online Public Access Catalog)

- It is the comprehensive catalog of books, journals, e-books and e-journals possessed by the Library System of Padua: all the Padua University libraries together with the main libraries of the city of Padua.
- It is used to locate and retrieve a document.
- It can be accessed everywhere by everyone.

Pay attention! You can't reach single articles through OPAC: for that kind of documents you need to search databases.

- You can search the Catlogue through different strategies:
 - ❑ Basic search
 - ❑ Search by fields
 - ❑ Advanced search
 - ❑ Search by lists
